

From the Editors' Desk

Now we are at the stage of publishing the opening issue of a new volume, volume no. 3 of our journal. For this issue our plan was to publish the follow up papers related to the presentations in the one day national level seminar on Astronomy at our college. Though we received six follow up papers but due to technical reasons, not all of those were ready to publish; however, the papers which were received but not yet ready to bring out in this issue, may be published in future after required modifications. So we have a mixed set of papers, some are related with the seminar and some others are regular ones. In this issue we are publishing six papers in total. Among these two are research articles, three are review articles and one belongs to the category of “innovative ideas in research and teaching methodology”. We would like to express our gratitude to the contributors whose support encourages us to start this series.